When the building in downtown Saratoga Springs became available; a building awash with over 150 years of Saratoga's rich history, a building whose structural design and brickwork evokes Spanish colonial architectural underpinnings, it was as if the building was fated to become the home of Boca Bistro. Our main goal was to create a space that told a story by preserving original elements and incorporating Spanish influence and old world feel through the use of Spanish tiles and handmade farm tables and wine cabinets. Original red brick removed from the interior walls was re-purposed to create the brick facing on the front of the building. Pressed tin discovered under the drywall and dropped ceiling was restored and repositioned on the restaurant's new ceiling. We incorporated vintage reclaimed wood while adding undertones of metal to create a dramatic contrast of textures and colors.

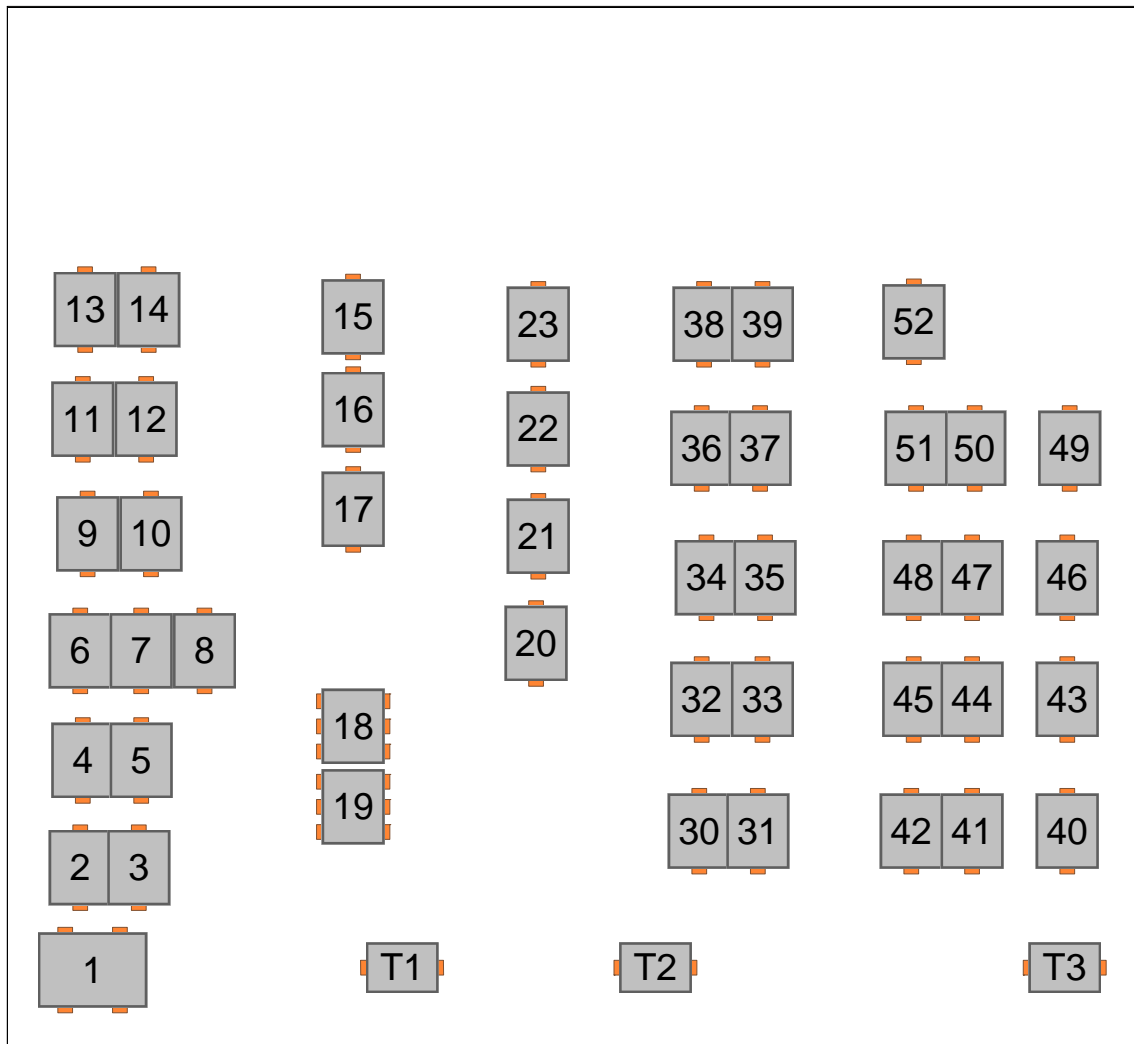

A raw and eclectic collection of lights including mason jars, Edison light bulbs, inverted garden pails and rock cages adds a warming glow to every corner of the restaurant. In that that the location didn't provide much space for an outdoor dining experience we devised an "outdoor" feeling with large pocket windows that provide guests with an open-air sensation. Our concept is rooted with simplicity, in the design as well as in the food. We created the elements of a fresh, traditional, Spanish cuisine and intertwined it with the warm, rustic, industrial tones of the restaurant. The food is prepared very simply and presented in a fun, interactive way with the use of cast iron serving pieces, terra cotta, and large paella pans.
